the APPALACHIAN FOOTHILLS +
 the TENNESSEE RIVER & 8 BIG LAKES +
 MILLIONS OF ACRES OF WOODLANDS = ADVENTURE

North Alabama marks the southern extremity of the beautiful Appalachian Mountains. The mighty Tennessee River cuts a large valley across our width, creating an abundance of creeks, streams, rivers, mountains, and lakes. Here you will find level highlands from 700 to 800 feet, a narrow strip of gentle rolling lowlands varying in elevation from 500 to 800 feet on each side of the Tennessee River, and a rugged section with steep mountain-sides, deep narrow valleys, and flat mountain-tops from 400 to 1,800 feet.

Preserving and enjoying nature is a rich part of our heritage. Our area includes the Bankhead National Forest, the Sipsey Wilderness Area, Wheeler National Wildlife Refuge, eight expansive lakes, millions of acres of woodlands, and hundreds of miles of nature-based trails.

From kayaking and white water rafting, to rock climbing, hiking and biking, we invite you to come explore and see what each of the 16 counties of North Alabama have to offer.

Bankhead National Forest / Sipse Wilderness

Double Springs, Ala. www.fs.usda.gov
The William B. Bankhead National Forest is one of Alabama's four National Forests, covering 181,230 acres. It is home to Alabama's only National Wild and Scenic River, the Sipse Fork. Recreational Areas and offers so many trails you could spend weeks here.

There are six recreation areas scattered about the Bankhead National Forest, each offering a unique experience of its own. Facilities for camping, picnicking, fishing, hiking, and swimming are abundant. All facilities are designed with forest users in mind and provide varying challenges for everyone from the novice to the expert. Forest users will find that each area has its own personality and with the changing seasons, even that personality will change.

Sipse is the largest national forest wilderness area east of the Mississippi. The Sipse Fork river offers a peaceful float trip combined with the beautiful scenery and great camping that distinguishes the Bankhead from other National Forests. While canoeing the Sipse Fork you will pass magnificent walls of rock which has been carved for thousands of years by the erosive power of water. As the Sipse Fork begins to merge with Smith Lake the creek becomes non-turbulent and wide. This area must be paddled but offers a slow-pace if interested in fishing or just a slow-paced family trip.

The Wheeler National Wildlife Refuge was established to protect various wildlife species across the present landscape. Wheeler National Wildlife Refuge was established July 7, 1938 by President Franklin D. Roosevelt as a refuge and breeding ground for migratory birds and other wildlife. It was the first refuge ever superimposed on a hydro-electric impoundment and in the early stages, considered an experiment to determine the possibility of attracting migratory waterfowl onto a multipurpose impoundment. www.fws.gov/refuge/wheeler

HUNTSVILLE

Painted Bluff
Soaring over 270 feet above the Tennessee River, Painted Bluff is at the top of North Alabama's main-see list. Eighty ancient drawings on Painted Bluff include people, snakes, fish, birds and other animals and were made about 600 years ago. Recently it was discovered that certain colorings used to create the images were traced from locations hundreds of miles away, providing important clues to prehistoric trade in the area. Painted Bluff is guarded by the Archaeological Resources Protection Act. Any damage and destruction of property is a violation of federal law and offenders will be charged with a felony. TVA has created a program called Thousand Eyes to help protect places like Painted Bluff. The program calls upon area paddlers to monitor sensitive areas in peril from any kind of destructive activity.

Hamberick Hollow Bat Cave
Contact the outfitter listed on this sign for evening kayak bat tours where 60,000 grey bats swarm from this water-level cave about 1.5 miles downstream from the dam. Put in on the north side of the river, branch to the right at the end of Guntersville Dam Road to reach the small dock and launch area below the dam.

Guntersville Lake

The Point
This scenic entertainment development features a lot to enjoy in a half-day afternoon session. A water tower (The Lounge), Top of The River Restaurant, via Norms Market, Wyndham Hotel and Dock and Public grocery store—and more offer everything that might life to dry storage.
