LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN PARKWAY

Start/End: The Lookout Mountain Parkway spans three states as it stretches across Lookout Mountain from Gadsden, Alabama to Chattanooga, Tennessee. The Lookout Mountain Parkway begins at Noccalula Falls Park in Gadsden, Ala., on top of Lookout Mountain. It is easily accessible via exit # 188 off Interstate 59 and following Highway 211 to Noccalula Falls Park. Turn to the left on Tabor Road in front of the Park to begin your journey across the scenic Lookout Mountain. Scenery: Within its 93-miles, one will find waterfalls, canyons, scenic brow vistas, unique towns and villages, state and national parks and preserves and many more natural wonders. Named by Reader's Digest as one of The Most Scenic Drives in America.

Road Quality: Paved, well maintained with mountain vistas and rolling hills.

What to see in North Alabama along the way: Noccalula Falls Park

Hwy. 211; (256) 549-4663, campground (256) 543-7412; www.cityofgadsden.com

A 250-acre park to the north of Gadsden. Once called Black Creek Falls, the 90-foot waterfall here now bears the name of the Cherokee princess Noccalula, who is said to have hurled herself to a watery death rather than marry a man she did not love. A bronze statue of the lovelorn maiden looks out endlessly on the falls. Nearby, a stairway descends into Black Creek Gorge, a snaking chasm carved into the rocks just downstream from the falls. A 1 1/2-mile trail shadows the waterway as it races between towering sandstone bluffs. Call for hours, Admission.

Little River Canyon National Preserve

The green signs along Tabor Road, Rte. 89, the first leg of the Lookout Mountain Parkway, will guide you north to State Rte. 68, where the parkway becomes Rte. 176 with Leesburg on the left and Collinsville to the right. Farther along, at a community called Dogtown, the drive makes a brief, beautiful detour from the parkway itself, taking Rte. 176A northeast along the western rim of Little River Canyon.

The roadway parallels the steep-walled rift, one of the deepest to be found east of the Mississippi River. Turnouts are sprinkled along the route; stand at the canyon's edge.

About the Tennessee Valley Authority:

The Tennessee Valley Authority is a corporate agency of the United States that provides electricity for business customers and local power companies serving 9 million people in parts of seven southeastern states. TVA receives no taxpayer funding, deriving virtually all of its revenues from sales of electricity. In addition to operating and investing its revenues in its electric system, TVA provides flood control, navigation and land management for the Tennessee River system and assists local power companies and state and local governments with economic development and job creation.

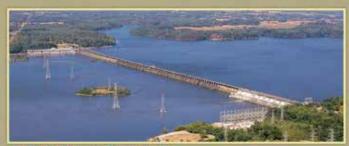

The original objective of TVA when it was established in 1933 – to make life better for the people of the Tennessee Valley – remains the federal corporation's goal. It serves seven states: Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia. Two TVA dams in Alabama – Wheeler Dam and Guntersville Dam – are currently being reviewed by the National Park Service for possible inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places.

What to see along the way:

Guntersville Dam

3464 Snow Point Rd., Guntersville, Ala. 35976.

Guntersville Dam is a hydroelectric facility with four generating units boasting a net dependable capacity of 124 megawatts. Guntersville Reservoir has almost 890 miles of shoreline and 67,900 acres of water surface. Construction of Guntersville Dam began in 1935 and was completed in 1939.

Joe Wheeler Dam near Rogersville, Ala.

Guntersville Reservoir is located in northeast Alabama, extending 76 miles up the Tennessee River into Tennessee. The nearby town of Guntersville is named for John Gunter, an early Scottish settler and adopted member of the Cherokee tribe, who established the town the year after the end of the American Revolution.

Good fishing, clear waters and the beautiful backdrop of the wooded Appalachian foothills combine to make Guntersville one of the South's premier recreation attractions.

Crappie is the number one sport fish, usually accounting for more than half of the total catch. Bass and bluegill are also caught in large numbers. The area just below Guntersville Dam is known for its fine sauger fishing during autumn and winter, white bass in early spring and catfish during the summer.

The area below the dam offers unique opportunities for day hiking and caving. An easy one-mile loop trail leads by a cave used during the Civil War to mine saltpeter, a basic ingredient of gunpowder.

Wheeler Dam

24455 AL Hwy. 101, Town Creek, Ala. 35672

Wheeler Dam in northern Alabama has 11 generating units with a net dependable capacity of 361 megawatts. The reservoir helps cover the Muscle Shoals, rock formations that had blocked navigation on the Tennessee River, which means the lake level can vary only by a matter of feet from winter to summer.

Wheeler Reservoir is named for Joseph Wheeler, a general in the army of the Confederacy, leader of U.S. volunteers in the Spanish-American War and U.S. congressman. Construction of Wheeler Dam began in 1933 and was completed in 1936. It was the second dam TVA built, finished only seven months after Norris Dam in Tennessee.

Wheeler is one of nine reservoirs that create a stairway of navigable water on the Tennessee River from Knoxville, Tennessee, to Paducah, Kentucky. Wheeler, along with Wilson and Pickwick reservoirs downstream, helps cover the Muscle Shoals.

Today, Wheeler Reservoir is a major recreation and tourist center. Along with camping, boating and fishing, visitors enjoy the Wheeler National Wildlife Refuge several miles upstream from the dam. The refuge features Alabama's only significant concentration of wintering Canada geese.

Wilson Dam

Visitor Center - Located off Reservation Road in Muscle Shoals, the Visitor Center is accessible year-round. Display panels near the power plant describe the struggle between private and public power interests for ownership of the Shoals facilities, which TVA acquired when the corporation was created in 1933.

Wilson Reservoir is known as the Smallmouth Capital of the World for the trophy smallmouth bass caught there. The dam, built in the neoclassical style, has 21 generating units with a net dependable capacity of 663 megawatts.

Wilson Dam is on the Tennessee River in northwest Alabama. It is the only neoclassical-style dam in the TVA system, integrating themes of ancient Roman and Greek architecture into the modern structure.

The construction of Wilson Dam began in 1918, a year after the United States entered World War I. The federal government built two nitrate plants at Muscle Shoals for the making of explosives, and Wilson Dam was constructed to supply the electricity needed to power the plants. TVA acquired Wilson Dam in 1933.

The site features a network of hiking and walking paths, including Old First Quarters Small Wild Area, named after a complex that housed engineers during Wilson's construction. Small feeder creeks run through the natural area, forming an ideal habitat for a variety of ferns, including the walking fern, a rarity in Alabama.

NORTH ALABAMA WINERIES ROUTE

Start/End: This is approximately a five hour route. While our route directions start at Jules J. Berta Winery in Albertville, Ala., you may start the route at any of the selected wineries.

Scenery: Overall, this drive is very scenic with eye-catching views of the rivers and lakes in the area, as well as cresting hills for breathtaking mountain views. Many areas offer canopies of gorgeous oak, hickory, ash, and elm. There's also plenty of Alabama snow and down home ranges- cotton fields, grazing pastures, tilled farmland, and other rural delights. Let's not forget the many rock walls, sweeping curves, and winding slopes one will enjoy on this delightful route.

Road Quality and Directions:

Jules J Berta -> Will's Creek

First 3 lefts out of JJB are on rough, narrow roads. Once you make the first right, the road opens up nicely. Co Rd 4 is narrow, but nice. Co Rd 452 is more narrow, but very fun to ride with curves, slopes, and rises.

Will's Creek -> Maraella

Mostly smooth, minor rough patches. But lots of local produce stands, farmer's markets, a few gas stations. Be sure to turn right at the Little River Canyon Mouth Park sign to get onto Keener Rd, it sneaks up on you. Otherwise, roads are lovely and easy to navigate. Beautiful ride. Maraella -> Fruithurst Winery Co.

Mostly Hwy 278, but still very scenic, smooth roads, curvy, will be gorgeous in spring and fall. Vigo Rd is a little more narrow and rough, but the views are amazing. Saw quite a few other bikers. Very curvy roads and plenty of inclines and declines. Rd connecting to 49 is a bit rough, but short. It crosses a biking trail, be sure to keep left. Co Rd 49 is a little wider at first, narrows and gets a little rough after about a mile. No shoulder, but very curvy with ups and downs. Road gets better before bridge, then a little rough after bridge. If the detour signs for bridge work are still up, ignore them. Bridge is completed. Important! If following GPS, the winery is actually 1/2 mile past where GPS claims. (Or before, if riding the other direction). Winery is clearly visible from the road. Fruithurst Winery Co. -> High Country Cellars

65 is narrow with no shoulder, little rough, but very scenic and curvy. 78 is very curvy, smooth roads, wide, multilane in places. Keep right, though, once you see the welcome to Heflin sign. Very nice route.

High Country -> White Oaks Vineyards

Short ride. Smooth, wide. Drive through Talladega National Forest. AL 9 is well paved. Dry Hollow Rd is before the bridge. For a slightly longer more wooded drive, take Iron City Road off of AL 9, then turn left onto Mandy Lane and cross back over AL 9 to Dry Hollow Rd.

What to see along the way: Jules J. Berta Vineyards

We are a winery where Old World meets the Heart of Dixie! We have a heritage moving through the generations which was born through the love of a Hungarian refugee.
